ARCADI VOLODOS

Biography

"Arcadi Volodos: A keyboard poet beyond compare" (The Independent)

"Arcadi Volodos plays Schubert wie ein neuer Horowitz" (Ruhr Nachrichten)

Volodos has everything—imagination, passion and a phenomenal technique—to express his ideas on the piano. His limitless virtuosity, combined with a unique sense of rhythm, color and poetry, makes Volodos the narrator of intense stories and infinite worlds!

Born in St Petersburg in 1972, Arcadi Volodos began his musical studies with lessons in singing and conducting. He did not begin serious training as a pianist until 1987 at the St Petersburg Conservatory before pursuing advanced studies at the Moscow Conservatory with Galina Egiazarova and in Paris and Madrid.

Since making his New York debut in 1996, Volodos has performed throughout the world in recital and with the most eminent orchestras and conductors. He has worked with, among others, the Berliner Philharmoniker, the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra, the Philharmonia, the New York Philharmonic and Munich Philharmonic orchestras, the Royal Concertgebouw Orchestra, the Dresden Staatskapelle, Orchestre de Paris, Leipzig Gewandhausorchester, Zurich Tonhalle Orchestra, and the Boston and Chicago Symphony orchestras, collaborating with conductors such as Myung-Whun Chung, Lorin Maazel, Valery Gergiev, James Levine, Zubin Mehta, Seiji Ozawa, Jukka-Pekka Saraste, Paavo Järvi, Christoph Eschenbach, Semyon Bychkov and Riccardo Chailly.

Piano recitals have played a central role in Volodos's artistic life since he began his career. His repertoire includes major works by Schubert, Schumann, Brahms, Beethoven, Liszt, Rachmaninoff, Scriabin, Prokofiev and Ravel together with less often performed pieces by Mompou, Lecuona and de Falla.

Volodos is a regular guest of the most prestigious concert halls of Europe and appears regularly in Berlin, Vienna, London, Amsterdam, Paris, Rome, Madrid, Zurich, Brussels, Munich as well as at the Klavierfestival Ruhr, the Festival La Roque d'Anthéron and the Salzburg Festival. In the 2021-2022 season he will perform at the Philharmonie in Paris, the Konzerthaus in Vienna, during the prestigious Salzburg Festival, at the Auditorio Nacional in Madrid, the Palau de la Música in Barcelona, Flagey in Brussels, at the Auditorium Santa Cecilia in Rome, the Gulbenkian Foundation in Lisbon, the Liederhalle in Stuttgart, the Victoria Hall in Geneva, the Tonhalle in Zurich, the Latvian National Opera House in Riga and in Dresden, Granada and in major festivals such as La Roque d'Anthéron, the Klavier Festival Ruhr, Verbier and Ljubljana.

Since his Gramophone Award-winning debut recital at New York's Carnegie Hall, released by Sony Classical in 1999, Arcadi Volodos has recorded a series of critically acclaimed albums. These include revelatory interpretations of Schubert sonatas and Rachmaninoff solo pieces, and live performances with the Berliner Philharmoniker of Rachmaninoff's Third Piano Concerto, conducted by James Levine, and Tchaikovsky's First Piano Concerto, conducted by Seiji Ozawa. Volodos Plays Liszt, released in 2007, attracted numerous prizes, while his Musikverein recital from 2010 was released on CD and DVD to rapturous international critical acclaim. His 2013 solo album Volodos Plays Mompou, devoted to works by the Spanish composer Frederic Mompou received a Gramophone Award and the Echo-Preis.

Volodos Plays Brahms is the last recording published in April 2017, an album of thirteen piano pieces by Johannes Brahms, including Opus 117 & 118 and a selection of op. 76. 76. Immediately considered a landmark on the music scene, the album has been awarded in November 2017 with the Edison Classical Award and Diapason d'Or. In October 2019, Sony Classical released his most recent recording: Volodos Plays Schubert, including Sonata D959 and the Minuets D334, D335 and D600, which received the Edison Classical Award (2020) in the Solo Instrumental category.
